SPACES FOR LIVING AND LINGERING

Casually sophisticated and comfortably elegant, J. Banks Design Group redefines luxury at home.

When interior designer Joni Vanderslice founded J. Banks Design Group in 1986, she set her sights on creating luxury interiors that were as timeless as they were personal and as functional as they were sophisticated. Now an internationally recognized powerhouse in commercial and residential interior design, the firm's ethos remains a touchstone for its team and runs throughout its stunning portfolio of award-winning work spanning 19 states and five countries.

Recognized globally for innovative hospitality interiors, Vanderslice views her firm's residential work as a symbiotic beneficiary of decades of experience crafting gorgeous spaces travelers flock to for a relaxing getaway.

"Your home should be the same sort of comfortable, luxurious haven," Vanderslice says. "Our residential interiors evoke that experience of a place that you want to linger in while functioning beautifully for the way you live."

From an urban take on Western living in Steamboat Springs to crisply contemporary Lowcountry getaways or a reimagined farmhouse in the Italian countryside, every J. Banks Design Group interior is timelessly elegant, eschewing pretense and formality, with each uniquely suited to the needs and character of the client. Identifying the client's aesthetic is at the heart of the design process, and shaping each space to fit their day-to-day lives is the foundation for every bespoke design.

"Sometimes it's a visit to a remarkable locale or resort, a childhood memory, or an image from a magazine that resonates with a client when we talk about their vision," says Vanderslice. "Our goal is visualizing that experience and bringing it home."
