

COMPLEX MATTERS. DEDICATED ADVOCATES. POWERFUL REPRESENTATION.

As experienced commercial litigators and small business owners themselves, the skilled attorneys at Morris Wilson Knepp Jacquette, P.C. have firsthand knowledge and are equipped to handle all small business legal needs, regardless of complexity.

"I started my own firm because I like being a small businessman," explains Robert Morris, founding partner of Morris Wilson Knepp Jacquette, P.C. "We understand the everyday complications that small business owners need to solve."

Empathy for small business concerns has resulted in long-term relationships with clients who look to Morris Wilson Knepp Jacquette for legal advice over the life of their companies. "We've handled some business clients' litigation and transactional needs for decades," says Seth Wilson, partner. "They stay because we treat them the way we would want to be treated ourselves."

Founded in 1991, the firm includes four attorneys who represent individuals and companies in complicated business-related matters and commercial disputes, as well as individuals who have been catastrophically injured. Having recently expanded, opening an office in Philadelphia to add to its longstanding Conshohocken location, the firm is perfectly situated to serve clients throughout Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Morris Wilson Knepp Jacquette operates as a team to provide the experience and knowledge of a big firm with the personalized time and attention of a small business. Boutique by design, the firm has a track record of success in taking on big companies with significant resources. "We represent the little guy in business litigation matters going head-to-head with big corporations and Fortune 500 companies," says Wilson.

The firm sets itself apart by not only fielding general business inquiries such as contractual or shareholder disputes, but also tackling highly sophisticated commercial matters including securities fraud and professional negligence cases. Regardless of the issue, the attorneys give clients realistic expectations and present all options for resolution. "We are honest with our clients about the range of potential outcomes, so they know what to expect with no surprises," says Wilson.

Pursuing Justice

Eager advocacy and superior courtroom skills make the attorneys of Morris Wilson Knepp Jacquette welcome counsel. "We appreciate being able to use our experience to help clients through the court system and thoroughly enjoy being in a courtroom to advocate for a client's position," says David Jacquette, partner.

At any stage of a legal proceeding, representation by seasoned litigators with the necessary expertise and resources is crucial in the event the case advances to trial. "If you don't have a lawyer prepared to try your case and go to court, you won't get the best result in the courtroom or the best settlement out of court," says Morris.

While the firm strives to efficiently resolve disputes, its attorneys are not afraid to climb the courthouse steps. "We don't compromise when it comes to our clients' best interests; we aggressively pursue our clients' rights while maintaining professionalism," says Joshua Knepp, partner. "Our role as advocates is taken very seriously and held near and dear to our hearts."
